CHILDREN MAKE MODEL GARDENS

1923

The children of the R. F. Day School are simply delighted that the Seattle Garden Club is giving a spring flower show at Fifth and University May 3, 4 and 5. For one of the exhibits at the show will be miniature gardens, with little houses on a grass plot, and hedges of splendid green sponge, paper flowers, mirrory ponds, sand paths, urns and sun dials, fir trees and rock gardens.

"There are twenty-four children working on the twelve gardens and the teacher herself is studying as deeply as the children, trying to give a realistic appearance, keep the dew off the paper daisies and attach the genuine green sponges to the tray," said Miss Blanche Byron, industrial art teacher at the school, who has these gardens to treat about. Betty Beach, Jewell Deaton and Ralph Holme were among the children collaborating on the gardens.

"One of the things you have to know about gardens is whether the tulips and peonies and sunflowers bloom at the same time of year or not," observed Betty, seriously. For these are no mere fanciful gardens, they are intended to be practical working plans for home gardens on a small lot. The flower show committee of the club met yesterday at the Sunset Club and announced the contribution of $400 in cash prizes and several other prizes as awards for the show.
